ECONOMIC IMPACT

Agricultural pursuits have dominated the Cecil County landscape and economy for centuries. The number of farms is growing and agriculture is still an important and thriving industry. Cecil County farmers produce products for local, regional, national and international marketplaces.

The contribution of our agricultural businesses to the local economy is significant. Cecil County has 74,000 acres dedicated to agricultural production. Our producers are highly diverse and growing everything from fruits and vegetables to grains, eggs, honey and livestock. The total ancillary impact of agriculture is nearly $310,000,000 on Cecil County's economy.

THE MISSION of the Cecil County Office of Economic Development's Agriculture section is to be the "Chamber of Commerce for Agriculture." Its goals:

- to unite the agriculture community of Cecil County,
- to promote and enhance the economic vitality of all sectors of agriculture
- to advise government (local, state, national) on the interest of agriculture,
- to raise the public awareness of the importance of agriculture and to increase public understanding of modern agricultural production processes.
